Gunmen take 170 hostage at Radisson Blu Hotel in Mali; 3 deaths reported

(CNN) Two or three attackers stormed a hotel in Mali's capital Thursday morning, firing guns and initially taking about 170 people hostage, officials said. At least three deaths were reported. Two armed men initially locked in about 140 guests and 30 employees at the Radisson Blu Hotel in Bamako, hotel officials said. By noon, the country's state broadcaster, ORTM, reported that at least 80 of the hostages had been freed. The attackers, carrying AK-47's, arrived around 7 a.m. in a vehicle or vehicles with diplomatic plates, said Olivier Saldago, a spokesman for the United Nations mission in Mali. The gunmen fired as they entered the hotel, and the gunshots went on for several minutes, said witness Amadou Keita, who works at a cultural center close by. Two Malian nationals and a French national have died, a U.N. official said without elaborating. Malian soldiers, with help from U.N. troops, had the hotel surrounded. They were able to free a few hostages, a journalist for ORTM, the state television, told CNN from the scene. Among them were three U.N. staff members, a source told CNN. It's unknown how many other staffers remain inside. No group immediately claimed responsibility for the incident.

California officer shot dead in lot behind police station

(CNN) Three people are in custody in connection with the shooting death of a Los Angeles-area police officer who was sitting in his personal car in a parking lot behind a station, Los Angeles County Sheriff's Lt. John Corina told reporters on Thursday. Two men and a 16-year-old boy are in custody and each suspect will face a murder charge, he said. It appears Downey Police Officer Ricardo "Ricky" Galvez was shot Wednesday night during a botched robbery, Corina said. Galvez had just returned to department headquarters from a K-9 training after 11 p.m. Wednesday and was sitting in a public parking lot not far from an entrance to the station. He had been in his car for a few minutes when two men approached. Some of the suspects have admitted to the attempted robbery, Corina said. The men probably didn't realize Galvez, who was not in uniform, was a police officer, he said. A police officer in a nearby patrol car heard gunfire and saw two men get into another vehicle and race off, Corina said. That officer chased the car to the nearby community of Montebello, where the three suspects bailed out, Corina said. The driver was caught soon after he tried to flee. Galvez died of his wounds, Corina said. Investigators have taken a revolver into evidence, officials said. Authorities didn't release the name of the adult suspects, and said they were not seeking anyone else in connection with the crime.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Mild and dry conditions will return today and last through the weekend. Another storm system will bring colder temperatures along with rain and mountain snow Monday night through Wednesday.

Medford Weather:

A very dry air mass will affect the forecast area over the weekend; leading to generally above normal daytime temperatures and chilly overnight low temperatures in the valleys.

Reno Weather:

Dry weather and relatively light winds will continue through the weekend. Next week starting Tuesday, a winter storm will bring much colder temperatures and chances of snow for the thanksgiving holiday.

San Francisco Weather:

High pressure aloft and light offshore surface flow will continue our mild and dry weather conditions through the weekend. Next week a cold system is projected to propagate down the west coast from the Gulf of Alaska. This system will bring much cooler conditions to our region along with a chance of rain leading up to the thanksgiving holiday. Dry and cool weather is expected on Thanksgiving Day.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Dry and mild weather expected to continue through the weekend with a little above normal temperatures. A change in the weather pattern begins Monday night with mountain travel impacts starting Tuesday as a cold Pacific frontal system moves through. Rain and snow continue Wednesday with showers ending in all areas but the Sierra crest by Thanksgiving night.

Hanford Weather:

Mainly clear skies and a slight warming trend will continue into the weekend due to high pressure. In addition patchy dense fog is possible in the San Joaquin valley mainly during the late night through the morning hours during the weekend and into early next week. A cold storm system may move in as early as next Tuesday with widespread precipitation.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Weak offshore flow will bring another day of well above normal temperatures for the coast and valleys. A stronger Santa Ana sets up for this weekend. A weak upper level low pressure will begin a cooling trend on Monday and a second colder low will arrive by midweek with highs dipping into the mid to low sixties or lower. Less confident for rain for midweek, but expect windy conditions at times next week.

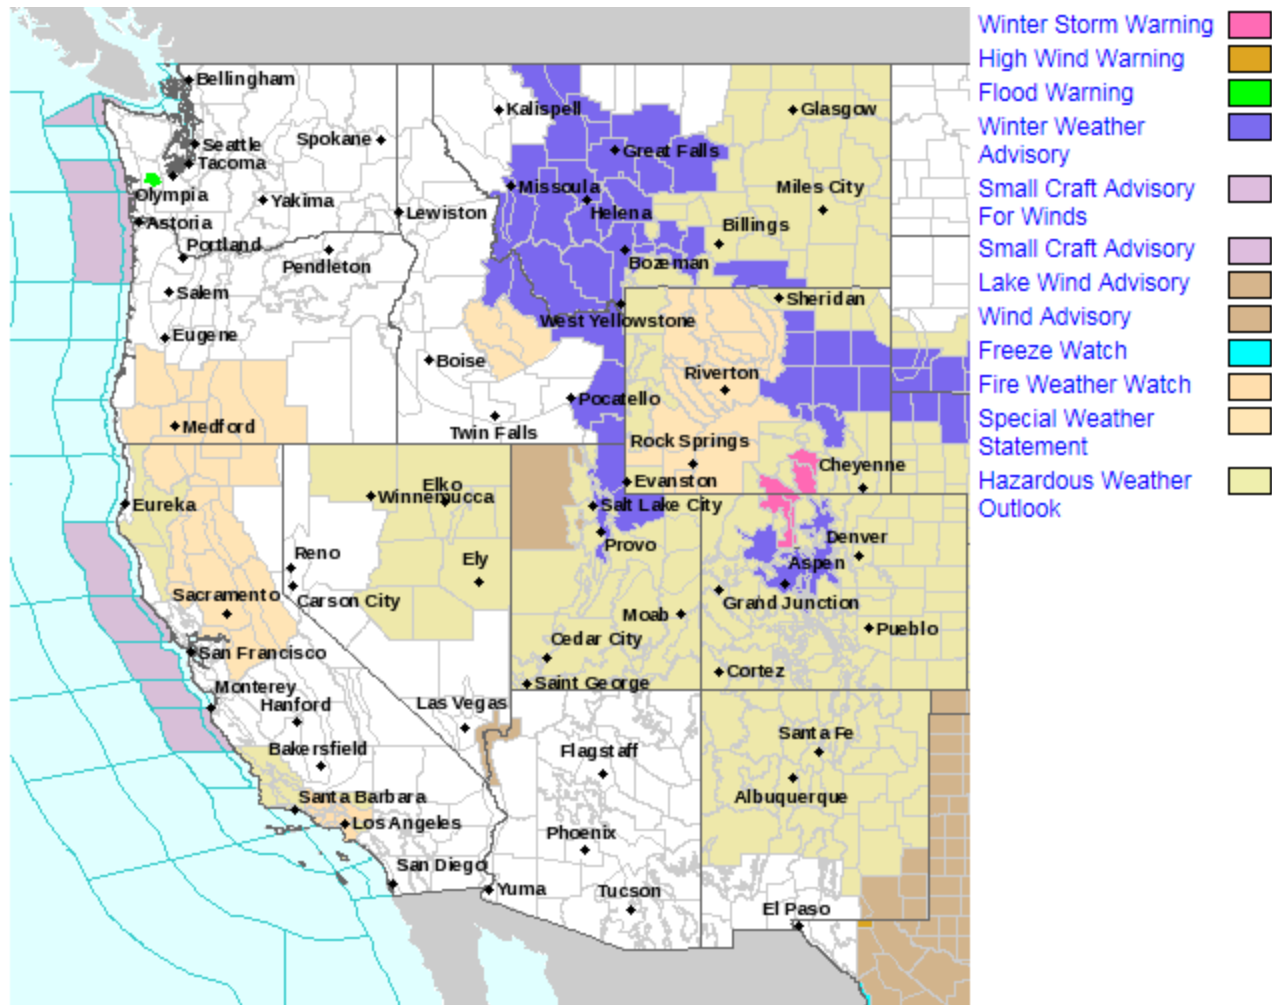

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure aloft off the California coast and surface high pressure over the great basin will bring well above average high temperatures through the weekend with weak to locally moderate gusty northeast winds near the coastal foothills for the weekend. A low pressure system will move southward through the western states next week. This will bring increasing onshore flow with a cooling trend, stronger and gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts and a slight chance of precipitation along and west of the mountains for Wednesday through early Friday.

Southeast California Weather:

Very dry northwest flow aloft will produce mostly clear skies with warm temperatures through Tuesday. Afternoon temperatures each day will warm to near 80 degrees across much of the lower deserts. A strong and unseasonably cold Pacific weather system is forecast to deepen across the desert southwest next Wednesday and Thursday resulting in breezy to windy conditions and much colder temperatures.
